COVID-19 infection rates falling as death toll climbs by one

BY BOB DEMAREE

COVID-19 infection rates are showing some improvement in Jefferson, Switzerland and Trimble counties but there are still serious cases and the death toll increased to 16 in Switzerland County with the reporting of that community's latest victim on Tuesday.

The Indiana Department of Health updated its county metrics on Wednesday, and both Jefferson and Switzerland counties remained in the "Red" metric for high spread while Trimble and Carroll counties are also still in the "Red" in Kentucky.

However, Jefferson County's positivity rate has currently improved to 27.8% while Switzerland County is at 17.3%. Trimble County most recently had a 30% positivity but is now at 23.68%. Meanwhile, Carroll County has the highest positivity rate in the four-county area at 33.03%.

Jefferson County reported 36 new cases of COVID-19 to push its total to 9,137 with 133 deaths. Trimble County had 12 new cases for 2,056 and 35 deaths, Carroll County had 14 new cases for 3,317 and 40 deaths and Switzerland County had 8 new cases for 2,246 overall and its 16th death.

The overall positivity rates are also improving statewide with Indiana at 21.9% and Kentucky at 22.9%. In addition to its 16th death, Switzerland County reported eight new positive cases in the last day, putting the county's overall total at 2,246.

Jefferson County reported 36 new cases of COVID-19 to push its overall total to 9,137 with 133 deaths. Trimble County had 12 new positive cases for a total of 2,056 and 35 deaths, and Carroll County had 14 new positive cases for a total of 3,317 and 40 deaths.

The overall death toll for the four local counties now stands at 224.

Jefferson County Sheriff Dave Thomas reported at Tuesday's Council Council meeting that there are no longer issues with COVID-19 at the jail after the facility reported dozens of positive cases last month and inmates were placed on lockdown to prevent spread.

"We've opened the jail back up. It's a non-issue both for the jail and the employees," Thomas said.

Mote: Consolidate probation and community corrections

Judge cites workload increase with rise in meth case numbers

BY BOB DEMAREE

Circuit Court Judge D.J. Mote came before the Jefferson County Council Tuesday night asking for financial support for a proposal to consolidate the Probation and Community Corrections offices of the court.

"In order to do this I have the power to appoint people as probation officers but I need a partnership with the Council because there will be some fiscal impact," Mote said.

"This is a real opportunity for us to exponentially increase the services that we are providing to people who are in our community and are serving sentences," Mote added.

The Council expressed its support for the consolidation, agreeing to provide employee benefits without immediately moving toward any additional appropriation since there may already be funds in the budget to cover that after some county employees declined health insurance coverage.

Mote noted that when a judge sentences a defendant there are two options — incarceration or community supervision — and for those receiving community supervision, the options are probation and community correction.

The judge said probation is designed for moderate risk offenders and misdemeanors with the probation officers serving as a direct extension of the judge. "I tell people if you're talking to probation officers, you're talking to me," he said, noting community corrections is an extension of the Indiana Department of Correction designed for high risk offenders

Chatham elected Madison City Council president

BY MARK CAMPBELL

With the resignation of former Fourth District Council member Katie Rampy last week to take over as Madison's clerk-treasurer, members of Madison City Council were picking a council president for the second time in a month.

When the Council reelected Rampy as its president on Jan. 4, it was by a 4-3 vote over Fifth District Councilman Curtis Chatham. On Tuesday, Chatham was the only nominee for the leadership position — the motion by Patrick Thevenow and seconded by Jim Bartlett — and the vote was 5-0 with Rampy's seat currently vacant and Carla Krebs absent.

The president pro tempore election was one of the few official matters of business conducted in a meeting that focused heavily on Black History Month and the city's role in the Underground Railroad and the people who assisted slaves' journey to freedom. A report on where the Georgetown Park project stands and a proclamation by Mayor Bob Courtney making February Black History Month in Madison also included a performance by Lillian Sue Wells Livers as Patsy Harris, wife of Underground Railroad conductor Chapman Harris, and singing by Pastor Harvey Leggett of the Broadway Second Baptist Church in Madison. (For a video coverage of the presentations, visit our media partner WKMN News at <https://www.madisoncourier.com/wkmnews/>)

However, the Council did approve four board appointments as presented by the mayor including Aaron Kelsey and Greg Goodnight to the Public Arts Commission, Tony Steinhardt III

Mayor Bob Courtney issued a proclamation making February Black History Month in Madison. In addition to helping slaves reach freedom, Chapman Harris also co-founded the city's first black church — Broadway Second Baptist Church — in 1849 which has served the community ever since. The band's website promises to "take listeners on an aural trip from the Andalucia region of Spain, to Lebanon, Columbia, and beyond. This Lexington, Tickets are available at Redbicyclehall.com, or at the door. The show starts at 8 p.m.

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

Wow, if I had to pick which show to attend on Friday, I'd be hard pressed. The fun vibe of Vaguely Familiar at the Taproom will be super chill. The Rumors will be rocking it hard at Mad Paddle. And the Bee Camp Boys at the Central? That is nothing but foot-stomping fun. The good news is all three of those shows are within two walking blocks of each other, so you don't have to choose. On Saturday that Alma Gitana show at the Red Bike is gonna be unlike anything we've ever had here in Madison, so that's something to consider. But hey, we're Indiana's Music City, you've got tons of other choices, depending on your mood. Savor the variety!

Sick of living with a slob

Dear Annie: My boyfriend, "Denny," and I have been together for two years, living together for the last year. He is a slob and oblivious to the mess he makes. When he fixes things in the house, he leaves his tools everywhere. He leaves spices and packaging all over the kitchen when he cooks. His clothes are scattered all over the house. He loses everything and never puts anything back where it belongs. I walk behind him all day, cleaning up his mess.

ANNIE
LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Chaos: You said it yourself; Denny's "oblivious" and "clueless" to his own mess. Have you ever brought it up? Odds are that he's not aware of the difference in your cleanliness standards, or he just doesn't realize it bothers you.

Don't beat around the bush. No more "prompting" or "demonstrating" what a clean home looks like. Denny isn't a mind-reader.

ANIE

looks like. Denny isn't a mind-reader.

If you tell him how you feel and he still doesn't pick up after himself, you might suggest doing a joint purging of your belongings. After all, fewer possessions means fewer items to be strewn all over your home. Marie Kondo's "The Life-Changing Magic of Tidying Up" is a great place to start.

Dear Annie: My husband and I are in an incredibly loving marriage. He cheated on me a week before our wedding. He was under the influence and really not thinking straight. We have both grown stronger and closer because of this. A few months ago, he was the driver for a support vehicle following bike riders in a charity event.

Each night, all of these men drank a lot, and my husband was around a lot of alcohol and cheated on me again.

He regrets this so much, and you can see his pain every day when he says he's sorry. We both know drinking is not good for us, but alcohol is in the house every day. He's supposed to be weaning off, but I don't see it happening. The alcohol in the house leads me to drink, and I'm trying not to. How can I talk to my husband about how I don't think this is good for us and am scared it'll lead him to cheat again?

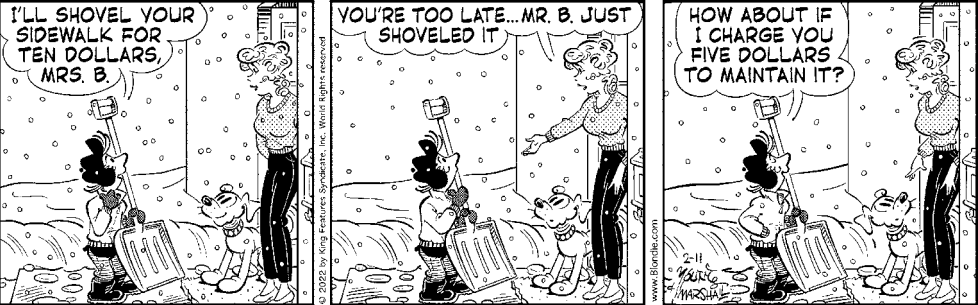

We've talked about it before, and we were really doing well, but then that trip happened, and it's been downhill since. Please help! — Done With This

Dear Done With This:
Alcohol addiction is a serious condition, and I am sorry for the pain it has caused for you and your husband. The fact that he may have used alcohol while driving a vehicle is especially dangerous. You should both contact your local chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous and seek couples counseling as soon as possible to regain control of your marriage.

Cut off from grandsons

Dear Annie: My wife and I have three grandsons, 11, 8 and 6. We live in different states. Six years ago, we asked our daughter if the boys could come for a vacation. That year, the two oldest came, and the following year, all three came to visit for two weeks. When the pandemic hit, we were able to help out by taking care of the three boys for about four months.

Since the first visit, the boys' parents divorced. Now my ex-son-in-law will not let the boys come for a visit. If he has given a reason, we are not aware of it. The boys discuss their upcoming summer break when we call. All three have discussed things they want to do when they come visit. How do we break the news to them that they will not be coming to visit?

Our daughter did say she would come with the boys for a two-week visit, but it's not the same for us. We just feel the boys are different when it's just us and them, and not their mom. We love our daughter and want to spend time with her, but we want some special time with the boys, too.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Are we being too picky? — Sad/Mad Grandpa

Dear Sad/Mad Grandpa: You are not being too picky by wanting some quality time alone with your grandsons. The bond between grandchild and grandparent is a special one, and it's wonderful that you're so close to all three of them.

Tell your daughter how much you value your grandparent-grandson trips, and ask what's preventing her ex-husband from allowing one this year. If she's comfortable, you might want to reach out to him directly and express your feelings to him, too.

If they're still opposed, maybe you fly to their state this summer to maximize time with your grandsons.

Dear Annie: I am the oldest of five children. Two of my younger siblings have already died, one of alcoholism at 59 and another of a drug overdose at 55. A third, younger alcoholic sibling, now 59, has a life that is a real train wreck. She seems well on the path to following in our late siblings' footsteps, and I am afraid she, too, will die. She says she will not quit drinking.

I am terrified, angry, anxious, heartbroken and disappointed. I have not been a supportive big sister due to all of these complicated feelings, but I also don't know what my responsibilities are. Do I have any? — Big Sister

Dear Big Sister: Alcohol and substance abuse are debilitating and unforgiving addictions; I'm so sorry for the pain and loss it has caused you and your family. With the right resources and a strong, loving big sister on her side, I hope your younger sister will be able to regain control of her life.

The National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence and her local Alcoholics Anonymous chapter are excellent places to start. A licensed therapist can also help your sister to work through trauma and lead her to the root and recovery of her own addiction to drinking. (You may find comfort from your own Al-Anon chapter.)

Most importantly, let your sister know that she will always have you in her corner as a source of love and support. She may be using drinking as a way to avoid her problems or find comfort in times of sadness and loneliness. With your shared past, the two of you can certainly relate to, and lean on, each other in dark times. If she rejects your support, there's really nothing you can do. We can't help people who don't want to help themselves.

Bethany Circle forms legacy foundation to address health, wellness

BY THE COURIER STAFF
The recent transfer of ownership of King's Daughters' Health from the Bethany Circle of King's Daughters' and Sons to Norton Healthcare has resulted in the creation of the Bethany Legacy Foundation to address health and wellness needs in Madison and Jefferson County.

"We're excited about the potential of this foundation to have a significant impact on the community," said Darleen Connolly, who is board chair of the foundation that will be governed by a volunteer board of directors. Initially, the foundation will focus on hiring a chief executive officer to direct its charitable operations, Connolly said.

Woodhouse Executive Search has been engaged to lead a regional and nationwide search for that person with the new CEO expected to be hired by this summer. Additionally, Connolly said this year will be the development phase for the organization when the structure and processes necessary for operating a private foundation are developed.

The Bethany Circle, created Oct. 13, 1896, was founded by women of the Presbyterian Church who opened and dedicated King's Daughters' Hospital on Aug. 25, 1899, with continued ownership until the transfer to Norton Healthcare last month.

In other business, the Council heard a report by Parks Director Matt Woolard that the Parks Board has agreed to abolish the $20 annual fee to use the dog park on Vaughn Drive. He said fees that have already been paid for 2022 will be reimbursed and access to the park will no longer require a pass.

The city collected about $1,700 last year on dog park passes and the board decided that it would be better to open the park for use by both residents and visitors to make the city more pet friendly to residents and tourists. Woolard said the vaccination requirements the city placed on users in the past will no longer be required but users will be required to follow state requirements on shot requirements for their animals.

Woolard also report that Joe Bronkella has been voted president of the Parks Board for 2022.

In other reports, Street Supervisor Tony Sorrells reported that the cleanup during and after last week's winter storm required 160 staff hours, 1,617 miles of travel by plow and salt trucks and application of 238 tons of salt in an around-the-clock operation.

The council's next meeting will be 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 22, and the Mayor's annual State of the City Address will be at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 24 at the Fairfield Inn & Suites by Marriott at St. Michaels Avenue and Vaughn Drive with doors opening at 5:30 p.m.

and requires more restrictive supervision than those on probation.

"Having two agencies that are essentially doing the same function in our community is very inefficient," he said. Even though there are differences in probation and community corrections, he said they are "two agencies for watching over people that we have diverted from prison and are keeping in our community."

Mote said probation currently has two probation officers assigned to supervise 370 cases, which he said is not in compliance with state standards. He said community corrections has eight case workers who are also handling 370 cases. "Logically, with the numbers there, probation is highly understaffed," he said.

In order to get fully in compliance with state standards, Mote said the solution is to consolidate probation with community corrections. "If we do this, there will be some structural changes," said Mote, who is still working to finalize that structure with the state's Supervised Release System (SRS). However, he said the consolidation would allow the number of probation officers to be increased to 12 and "bring us more in line with state regulations."

"With a unified system we would have a single entry point for every person that's going to be on community supervision," he said. "We would have uniformity in services. We would have the same standards, the same procedures and policies that we apply. We would have an increased ability in implementing quality assurance because community corrections has the staffing available to do those random pulls on those files, sit down with the case workers and see what kind of work they're doing. And see what they're doing right, and where we can improve."

Mote said the salaries of probation officers are tied to state statute and that will result in pay increases for some officers.

"We don't get to say what those raises are," Mote said, noting that is all dictated by judicial conference schedules as well as workload measurements. "By appointing corrections officers as probation workers, I am marrying their salaries to this statutory salary schedule, and their salaries will go up."

Even with the change, Mote said he has confirmed the county will continue to be able receive grant funding toward the salaries. With that, he said the salary increases can be funded by project income and through probation user fees. "We can absorb that without cost to the county," he said. "Future increases we can mitigate those through project income and probation user fees" but he said at "some point in the future the Council may be asked to help out with additional increases."

Mote said the new probation officers will need to be offered benefits, and with unification there will be a total of 18 community corrections employees including case workers and support staff. With benefits for each employee costing $8,356.92, the overall cost would be $150,424.56. Court services director Amber Finnegan said there is $54,000 available from court funds to contribute toward that total.

County Auditor Heather

Huff said it is possible the county may already have the additional funds for employee benefits in what has been budgeted for 2022. "I can think of several employees that do not even take insurance but we budget for them," she noted, suggesting they can wait until the end of the year to find out if any more funds will need to be appropriated.

Julie Mitchell, chief probation officer, said she expects the consolidation to happen gradually "instead of all of once because that would be a lot to take on all at once" but the hope is that the transition would be completely done by the time the next school year starts.

Mote cited an increase in cases involving methamphetamine as reason for the higher workload, noting there were 50 methamphetamine cases in 2012 compared to 257 in 2021. "We've increased our sheriff's department. We've increased our judges. We have a third judge now. You've been gracious enough to give me an additional staff person so we've increased court staff. We've increased our police department. Community corrections continues to grow. And we're growing because we're dealing increasingly with this difficult problem of methamphetamine. One area that we have not looked at is the probation department."

Mote said 30 counties in Indiana "are unified in one way or another" and "at some point the state is going to mandate this, and I want to be ahead of it."

In voicing support for the proposal Council member

Judy Smith said, "I believe in the long run this will benefit the community."

SW frosh Crawford claims sectional title

BY DAVID CAMPBELL
GALENA — When Raygan Crawford touched the pad to finish the 100 butterfly, she had no idea what she had just accomplished, only that she was pleased with her performance. But once she saw her sister and coaches jumping up and down wildly from across the pool, a satisfied smile quickly turned to a look of shock.

Crawford had edged Jeffersonville's Margaret Nifong by two tenths of a second to win the IHSAA Sectional title in the 100-yard butterfly in a thrilling race at Highland Hills Middle School on Monday.

The Southwestern freshman becomes the first Southwestern swimmer ever to win a sectional title and just the second ever to qualify for the state finals. Carolina Curioni earned a state berth while finishing second in 2016.

"I haven't really even thought about it yet," said Crawford, shortly after climbing out of the pool. "I'm just in shock."

Crawford was seeded second in the event after finishing three-tenths of a second behind Seymour senior Maren McClure in the preliminaries on Saturday. Although Crawford was right in the hunt, her coaches fully expected McClure to blow away the field in the finals.

But it quickly became apparent that it was going to be a tight race from the start and when the field made the final turn, Crawford had a slight lead on McClure, who was off to her left.

Crawford never knew she was leading. She just kept her head down and powered through the water until she got to the wall.

"When I got to that last 25 I thought I was dead but I knew I just had to keep going," Crawford said. "I knew that she was next to me but I didn't know I was in the lead. I was just trying to finish."

Crawford's 1:02.39 clocking broke her own school record in the event and beat out Nifong's 1:02.62 for first place. Floyd Central's Ella Robbeloth was third in 1:03.03 and McClure swam fourth at 1:03.04 for a very tight field.

"She's done some phenomenal things all season long. And you know, we knew that it was gonna be a tough uphill battle of the day because there's some really good swimmers," said Jay Crawford, Southwestern's coach and Raygan's father. "I told her to go out and swim her race Go out and swim like someone is behind you trying to chase you down and she did it."

Crawford was the only local swimmer to advance to the state finals, but she wasn't the only setting school records.

Madison's Mei Shibata, who was seeded No. 1 in both the 200 individual medley and the 100 breaststroke, finished second in the 200 IM in 2:16.08 while breaking a school record set in 1982.

Shibata also joined with Avery Johnson, Emily Nay and Reilly Kuppler to break their own school record in the 200 medley relay while placing third in 1:55.62. The quartet had initially broken the record, previously set in 2002, during the prelims on Saturday.

Switzerland County sophomore Ava Cole set school records in both the 200 IM (2:42.94) and the 100 backstroke (1:12.35) while placing 15th

Switzerland offense sputters in 42-26 sectional loss

BY DAVID CAMPBELL
Jessie Duvall scored her 1,000th-career point just over a minute into the game, but little else went right for Switzerland County, which saw its offense ground to a halt by South Ripley 42-26 in the championship game of the Class 2A Girls Basketball Sectional 45 at Southwestern on Tuesday.

Duvall came into the game needing just one point to become the sixth Lady Pacer in history to reach the 1,000 point milestone. She picked up the point at the free throw line, sinking both attempts before many fans had even sat down.

Duvall's two free throws were the first points of the game and twin sister, Maddie Duvall, followed Jessie's free throws with a basket and Halle Archer scored on layup to give Switzerland a 6-0 lead less than three minutes into the game.

But the Pacers managed only 20 more points the rest of the way as South Ripley's defense and length took over the contest. Add to that a Raider offense that score points in bunches and the result was a disappointing end to a fantastic season for Switzerland County.

"If we played that team over again, I'd have the same game plan and I think we would execute the same game plan," Switzerland coach Brooke Todd said. "We did exactly what we wanted to do and (South Ripley) banked in some shots that were at crucial times. We were trying to run them off the line and make them take contested threes and they did that. I'm proud of the girls. They did exactly what I asked them to do. So the game is not on them."

Each of the previous two meetings between the schools this year were low-scoring affairs played in the 20s so there was every reason to believe that Tuesday night would be no different. But unlike the regular-season meetings, South Ripley didn't hold the ball and, although still patient, the Raiders' added aggressiveness on offense powered them to the win.

South Ripley (18-8) answered Switzerland's opening run with an 11-1 run of its own to take an 11-7 lead after one quarter. But while the Raiders went ice-cold in the second, Switzerland managed enough points to close the gap to 19-14 with 22 seconds left before halftime.

Two of the banked 3-pointers that Todd spoke off came at the buzzers ending the first two quarters. Sarah Meyer drained a trey at the end of the first that gave South Ripley a four-point lead and second came right before halftime when Alexa Heidt hit a shot from the corner that pushed South Ripley's lead to 22-14.

Those two shots proved to be back-breakers for a Switzerland team that was having trouble getting any kind of traction against the Ripley defense. The Pacers crawled to within five (26-21) late in the third quarter after a Jessie Duvall basket, but Sarah Meyer's second banked basket — this one for two points — doused the Switzerland momentum.

"Fast break up the floor is our game. So when somebody wants to play slow against us, especially after they bank in three, then it's harder to climb back out because we're not getting as many possessions because they take so long to run their offense," Todd said. "Even if we get a stop, they have wasted so much time."

Switzerland's hopes at a win vanished in the fourth when South Ripley opened the quarter by scoring 10-straight points to break the Pacers' back. Exhausted, Switzerland managed only a Maddie Duvall 3-pointer and a Courtney Higgins layup in the lane as the Raiders pulled away for the win.

Maddie Duvall finished with eight points to lead the Pacers (18-7) while Jessie Duvall scored seven. It was a rough ending for the twins who have meant so much to the Switzerland program in their four years. Jessie ends her career with 1,006 career points, sixth most, while Maddie scored 824, just three shy of the school's top 10. Both sisters, along with Higgins, were named to the all-tournament team. Southwestern's Ashley Fulton and Riley Scroggins were also picked for the team.

Along with senior post players Nora Hankins and Hannah Hayes, the Pacers lose a class that will be hard to replace.

"What's hard about the season is they had such a great season but there's nothing to show for it. They don't have a conference title and they don't have a sectional and if we just could have gotten one of those things for them, it would have been great," Todd said. "They have all improved their game in some way to put us at a higher level. But it's hard to watch them not get something that I feel like they deserved."

Sacking QBs has always been passion for Bengals' Hendrickson

BY DENNIS WASZAK JR.
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Trey Hendrickson was once a touch-down-catching tight end in high school, a big-bodied target who was tough to take down.

Demolishing quarterbacks, though, just always felt better than spiking footballs.

You see, pass rushing is a passion for the Cincinnati Bengals defensive end. And opposing offenses are the unfortunate recipients of his game-wrecking fervor.

"I did love playing tight end, but there's nothing like sacking the quarterback," Hendrickson said. "Everybody will say touchdowns are the greatest thing. But I've scored touchdowns and I've sacked quarterbacks."

"There's nothing close to a sack." Hendrickson would certainly know. His 27½ sacks over the last two regular seasons rank him third in the NFL in that stretch, behind only Pittsburgh's T.J. Watt (37½) and Cleveland's Myles Garrett (28). That includes 14 for Hendrickson this season, his first in Cincinnati after four in New Orleans.

"In the secondary, we always joke about how Trey needs to let us get some interceptions," safety Jessie Bates III said with a laugh. "He was on a hot streak. I think he had like 10 games straight with a sack, so I know how much this means to Trey. He's a hell of a player and an even better person."

Bates was close: Hendrickson actually had nine straight games with a sack. But

Madison comeback falls short 48-41 to Lawrenceburg

BY JORDAN BEAR

Madison put forth a valiant effort but its comeback fell short as the Cubs dropped a 48-41 decision at home to Lawrenceburg Tuesday in boys basketball.

Down almost 20 points, it appeared that Madison was completely out of the game heading into the final period. But the Cubs rallied to cut the deficit to five with 1:45 to go but couldn't get over the hump and the Tigers hit free throws down the stretch to seal the victory.

"I spoke to our guys on Monday for about 30 to 40 minutes and just asked them how much do you care about each other," Madison coach Adam Stotts said. "Do you care about your teammates, coaches, the city you play for? We watched the film and I saw a team that just didn't give much effort (in the loss to Batesville on Saturday), and tonight I saw nothing but effort from my guys for the entire game and I'm proud of the way they performed."

The very disciplined Tigers were never in any hurry to score. In fact, the first offensive possessions of the game, Lawrenceburg held the ball for one minute and 45 seconds before even taking a shot, but still led 12-4 after the first quarter.

Madison was finally able to get some offense going in the second quarter but the Tigers kept pace and took a 21-14 lead into halftime.

Lawrenceburg blew the game open in the third quarter, pushing the lead to 20 before four late baskets by Madison cut the margin to 39-23 heading into the fourth.

That short closing run in the third quarter kicked-started an impressive rally for Madison in the fourth as the Cubs came out with a purpose to continuously get stops defensively and score bucket after bucket on offense. L ed by senior Jackson Falconberry, who finished with a game-high 25 points, Madison cut the lead all the way down to 41-36 and had the ball with 1:45 left in the game. However the Cubs couldn't capitalize and the Tigers sealed the game at the free-throws line.

Stotts was happy with how his team responded and how his newer guys stepped up.

"I look at a guy like Henry Grote, who wasn't afraid to get in anyone's face tonight and get on them for their play," Stotts said. "He stepped up from a leader standpoint, and I'm also proud of guys like Adam Traylor and Quincy Reynolds who are freshmen and are suddenly being put in really tough situations but they don't panic and they continue to play hard. So I love what my team did tonight. Lawrenceburg is really good, but my guys didn't back down and I can't ask for anything more."

In addition to Falconberry's 25 points, Grote and Jackson Lynch had five points each while Logan Rohr scored 14 points and Jackson Bobo 12 for Lawrenceburg.

It doesn't get any easier for Madison this weekend as they host Hoosier Hills Conference leader Floyd Central on Friday for homecoming and then head to Greensburg on Saturday.

Stotts knows Friday's game will be tough, but hopes his team perform up to the challenge.

"Floyd doesn't take bad shots. They just don't make many mistakes. We have to come in with a calm game plan and just try and play our game," Stotts said. "Hopefully we'll be ready to play and give it our best against a very good team."

West Washington pulls away late to beat Shawe 37-23

BY THE COURIER STAFF

West Washington closed the game with 12-straight points to finally pull away from Shawe and pick up a 37-23 win in the semifinals of the Class A Girls Basketball Sectional at West Washington on Monday.

Shawe fell behind 16-8 after the first quarter but spent the next two and half quarters chipping into the Senators' lead. The Hilltoppers trailed 19-12 at halftime and cut the lead to 25-21 after three quarters.

Lina Leatherman scored a basket with 5:32 left to pull Shawe to within 25-23, but that was as close as the Hilltoppers would get. Alandra Johnson hit a 3-pointer two possessions later for West Washington to provide some breathing room and Madison Brown followed shortly thereafter with a basket to push the lead back to seven.

The Senators then hit five free throws over the final three minutes to pull away and seal the win.

Shawe's freshmen led the team as they have done all year. Ava Turner scored 11 points and had six rebounds to pace the Hilltoppers while Allison Knoebel had six points.

Fellow freshman Harlee Hill scored two points, as did senior Leatherman and junior Autumn Lathrem.

Johnson scored 19 points to lead West Washington and Ava Woods added nine.

Shawe hit only nine field goals in the game but connected at a 40% rate.

The Hilltoppers also knocked down four of their nine 3-point attempts but went only 1-of-2 at the free-throw line and turned the ball over 25 times.

West Washington, meanwhile, shot 43% from the floor (12-for-28) but was 6-of-17 on 3-pointers and 7-of-12 from the free-throw line.

West Washington advanced to the sectional championship on Tuesday where it lost 47-34 to Trinity Lutheran.

The Senators finish the season at 15-8.

Shawe closes out the season with a 9-11 record, its most wins in a campaign since 2016-17 when the Hilltoppers went 14-12. Shawe graduates just one senior, Leatherman, while returning virtually all of its roster with several strong eighth graders moving up for next season.

"Anytime we got something going it got derailed and we couldn't overcome the challenges. I am proud of the kids for keeping their composure and battling all night," Shawe coach Dan Hambrick said. "The positives are that we got more of a balanced scoring attack from multiple players. That is a great sign for this year and the future."

Mixon quietly produces best year of his career

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Joe Mixon's foot injury in 2020 was one of many unfortunate events in another train wreck of a season for the Cincinnati Bengals.

Cincinnati had shown promise early that year, but suddenly its premier running back, coming off two consecutive 1,000-yard seasons, was done after six games. Injuries also took down rookie quarterback Joe Burrow and a long list of others.

The Bengals clunked to a 4-11-1 finish amid the chaos and confusion of the pandemic.

Mixon persevered. On a surgically repaired foot, the 6-foot-1, 220-pound power runner came back better than ever.

The best season of his five-year career earned Mixon election to the Pro Bowl and helped the Bengals go from worst to first in the AFC North — and ultimately to their first Super Bowl in 33 years.

The 25-year-old Californian never takes success — or good health — for granted.

"I always tell our players when I talk to them, you've got to play each play like it's your last because you're not guaranteed the next one," Mixon said Monday. "And we finally know what that means. And I finally know what that means, and know what that feels like."

"We've all been through adversity and everybody's learning to get through tough times," he said. "And for us to be able to be here in this position, it's a blessing."

Mixon knows about adversity. He created a great deal of it for himself as a younger man.

Many NFL teams didn't want to touch him because of behavioral problems and suspensions at Oklahoma, most notably a horrific video of him punching a woman during a scuffle in a restaurant before his freshman year in 2014.

Mixon apologized, took responsibility and accepted a plea agreement requiring probation, 100 hours of community service and behavioral counseling.

A civil lawsuit was settled out of court.

The Bengals thoroughly vetted him and were convinced he deserved a chance, drafting him in the second round in 2017.

Despite terrible offensive lines and various leg injuries, Mixon rushed for nearly 3,000 total yards in his first three NFL seasons.

In his first four seasons in the league, the Bengals were a combined 19-44-1.

Mixon had primarily been a two-down back. This season the Bengals used him as a three-down back.

More chances to get the ball in his hands, and more responsibility.

No. 3 Purdue beats No. 13 Illini for share of Big Ten lead

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST LAFAYETTE — Jaden Ivey and Eric Hunter Jr. provided the second-half muscle for No. 3 Purdue on Tuesday night.

Hunter scored all nine of his points during a game-changing run to start the second half and Ivey scored 26 points, 22 coming after he got angry, to help the Boilermakers run away from No. 13 Illinois 84-68.

Ivey was terrific on what turned into family night. He went 10 of 17 from the field, had six assists and four rebounds in front of his mother, Niele, the Notre Dame women's basketball coach. Purdue (21-3, 10-3 Big Ten) won its sixth straight to move into a share of the conference lead.

The only blemish: Ivey came up one point short of matching his career high.

Illinois (17-6, 10-3) was led by Kofi Cockburn, who had 18 points and seven rebounds. Andre Curbelo added 15 points as the Fighting Illini had a four-game winning streak snapped.

The hype for this game began almost as soon as the final buzzer sounded in Purdue's double overtime victory last month and took on even more urgency when conference officials moved the game up two days from the initial schedule for a clash between conference contenders.

A boisterous, early-arriving crowd kept the decibel level high all night — especially as the Boilermakers started pulling away midway through the second half. But it also energized Purdue, which had a slow start and endured a series of back-and-forth moments.

"He just let it come to him tonight," Painter said, referring to Ivey. "He made great decisions and a couple of those pull-ups are shots he hasn't even really taken this year. He's come a long way since the start of the season."

NORTHWESTERN OUTLASTS SHORT-HANDED INDIANA

EVANSTON, Ill. — Boo Buie had 16 points and Chase Audige scored eight of his 12 points in the second half and Northwestern beat short-handed Indiana 59-51 on Tuesday night for the Wildcats' third straight win.

Five different players scored for Northwestern (12-10, 5-8 Big Ten) in a 13-0 run to take a six-point lead about five minutes into the second half. Indiana assistant coach Kenya Hunter was assessed a technical foul and Ryan Greer made the first of two free throws to make it 36-35 with 15:49 left on the Wildcats led the rest of the way.

Indiana reserves Tamar Bates, Michael Durr and Khristian Lander as well as starters Xavier Johnson and Parker Stewart did not play for disciplinary reasons. Rob Phinisee also missed the game, his third straight, due to plantar fasciitis leaving coach Mike Woodson with just seven available scholarship players.

NO. 5 KENTUCKY HANDLES SOUTH CAROLINA ON ROAD

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Kentucky coach John Calipari has his eyes on March. And that's why he didn't mind his team losing a big lead before its latest win.

Oscar Tshiebwe posted his sixth straight double-double with 18 points and 14 rebounds and TyTy Washington scored 12 of his 14 points in the second half as the fifth-ranked Wildcats beat South Carolina 86-76 Tuesday night.

But Kentucky (20-4, 9-2 Southeastern Conference) squandered an 11-point lead before getting things in gear to reach 20 wins for a 13th time in the past 14 seasons.

"You need all kinds of games," Calipari said. "You need games like this where it's 43-43 (all) so you can find out who's who," he said.

The Wildcats certainly showed an extra gear against South Carolina (13-10, 4-7) with a 15-2 run to re-take control.

Washington and Tshiebwe led the charge on the way to Kentucky's fifth straight victory — and fourth in a row in league play.

if you count half-sacks, he was in on taking down the quarterback in 11 consecutive games.

"The first thing you have to mention when you talk about Trey is his intensity," Bengals defensive line coach Marion Hobby said. "He's an intense football player. He's intense in the meeting rooms and he's intense on the field. And on game day, he tries to take it up to another level."

In the 16 regular-season games he played, Hendrickson was shut out just three times. He has 2½ sacks in three playoff games, including 1½ at Kansas City in the AFC championship.

"I think the goal every game you go into is to affect the quarterback, whatever team you're playing for," Hendrickson said. "Quarterbacks win games. If you can take that piece of the puzzle away, I think it's a lot easier to control a game on defense and make sure that things are going in the proper direction."

In other words, dominating on defense and making things miserable for offenses. And winning games.

Hendrickson has helped the Bengals do all that since signing a four-year, $60 million deal last March following a breakout season in New Orleans, where he had 13½ sacks. That came after he had 6½ in his first three NFL seasons.

"He's been a tremendous pass rusher his whole career, and especially this season for us," linebacker Logan Wilson said. "I'm thankful our front office and coaching staff went out and signed him."

And Hendrickson's impact has been felt far beyond his sacks. Bates noted how defensive end Sam Hubbard had just two sacks last season, but had 7½ in 2021 and three more so far in the playoffs. There's also this: The Bengals had just 17 sacks in 2020, fewest in the NFL. They had 42 this season, ranking in the top half of the league.

"It's not all about what Trey (himself) has done for us," Bates said. "He helps out other guys around the defense."

Hendrickson has always shown an ability to make plays on the football field, making it look easy at times.

Growing up in central Florida, Hendrickson was a terrific athlete who also played lacrosse. His 6-foot-4, 215-pound frame in high school made him an ideal defensive end at Apopka High School. That's where the love for dumping quarterbacks began.

In three years, Hendrickson established himself as a top college prospect on defense, first as a linebacker and then as a defensive end, and drew the attention of several Division I programs. Then came some troubles before his senior year. Hendrickson was briefly booted from the football team because of his attitude, according to a Cincinnati Enquirer report.

When Hendrickson came back, he was asked to move to tight end because of injuries at the position. He embraced the move — and had seven touchdown catches that season.

Once, kids played like their lives depended on it. If only kids still did.

Chunky. Hefty. Big-boned. For parents of overweight children, it's all too easy to minimize reality. But the consequences of a heavy childhood may actually result in a generation of children with shorter life spans than their parents.

Encourage physical activity and better nutrition. Do whatever it takes to get your kids as active as kids once were. Activity and weight-bearing exercise will help your child live stronger, and live longer. For more advice and information, visit orthoinfo.org, aap.org/obesity and posna.org.

Spay Today

Save a Life Tomorrow

Did you know that one unspayed female cat can produce 36 cats in just one and a half years? And an unneutered male cat or dog can help create limitless litters!

Every year, millions of animals are euthanized in animal shelters, and millions more are abandoned to die on the streets. The good news is that all these deaths can be prevented with spaying and neutering. Altering animals also prevents deadly cancers and other diseases.

So what are you waiting for? Make an appointment to get your animal friend spayed or neutered today, and urge everyone you know to do the same. Remember, every single stray cat and every neglected dog came from an animal who wasn't spayed or neutered.

Pacers deal All-Star Sabonis to Kings in 6-player trade

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Pacers will look completely different when they return home later this week, while the Sacramento Kings are getting a two-time All-Star.

The teams agreed to a six-player trade Tuesday that will send star forward Domantas Sabonis to Sacramento and emerging point guard Tyrese Haliburton to the Pacers.

The Pacers confirmed the deal following Tuesday night's 133-112 loss at Atlanta.

The Kings will get Justin Holiday, Jeremy Lamb and a second-round draft pick in addition to Sabonis. Indiana is adding Haliburton, Buddy Hield and Tristan Thompson.

"It's an exciting trade and it changes the landscape significantly," said Pacers coach Rick Carlisle, who described Haliburton as "an elite young point guard that affects the game positively in many, many ways."

"We're getting three players who are good now and in the case of Tyrese, he has a chance to continue to grow. ... Finding a franchise-caliber point guard at age 21 is extremely difficult to do."

The trade was made after Sabonis, Holiday and Lamb participated in a practice before Tuesday night's game. Carlisle said he spoke with all three players at the team's hotel and was the first person to tell Sabonis of the trade.

"I just thanked him for an amazing few months from my perspective and several great years from the Pacers' perspective," Carlisle said.

The Pacers were left with eight healthy players against Atlanta. Guard Malcolm Brogdon (right Achilles soreness) and forward Isaiah Jackson (right ankle sprain) were held out.

Sabonis gives the Kings an immediate upgrade in the paint. He averages 18.9 points, 12.1 rebounds, and 5.0 assists, and has become a double-double machine. Sacramento's top rebounder before the deal was Richaun Holmes at 7.9 per game.

Sabonis could make a difference for a team that already has some young, talented players such as point guard De'Aaron Fox and Davion Mitchell. Sabonis also could serve as mentor to other young players — or his arrival could free up the Kings to make even more moves.

The Pacers aren't waiting to begin what could be a major overhaul. An injury-depleted roster has Indiana, which started this season with playoff aspirations, lagging near the bottom of the Eastern Conference standings. The loss to the Hawks left the Pacers with a four-game losing streak and losses in eight of their last 10 games.

Attendance also has declined this season and some fans have been clamoring for significant changes. Pacers president of baseketball operations Kevin Pritchard appears to be siding with those fans after making two key trades in less than 48 hours.

The first deal, sending Caris LeVert to the Cleveland Cavaliers for the injured Ricky Rubio and three draft picks, including a lottery-protected first-round selection this summer, came Sunday. Rubio has already been ruled out for the rest of this season and has an expiring contract.

Now, Pritchard has pulled off another major trade by getting Haliburton, who the Kings took with the No. 12 overall pick in 2020. He's averaging 14.3 points, is 11th in the NBA with 7.4 assists and tied for sixth with 1.7 steals.
